ON ITS WAY.

The parcel post is now really in sight if, as would seem to appear from the statements of Postmaster General Hitchcock, the administration is going to make a determined effort to obtain authority for its establishment on rural mail routes. In his recent testimony before the postal commission in New York city, and again in Washington, Mr. Hitchcock came out strongly for this enlargement of the postal service. As soon as the plan is worked out on the rural routes, Mr. Hitchcock will extend the service to other communities, so that packages can be delivered by city carriers. Such a development ought to increase the revenue far beyond the expense involved, and would at least bring the United States postal service up to the level of that on the continent and in England. The only question is whether the express companies, which have heretofore exercised the veto power, will again be able to prevent the adoption of this reform. It does not seem as if that were now likely. The hold of corporations upon politics has been so shaken—they have lost their senator from the United States Express company—that it ought to be no longer possible to delay the needed legislation. Mr. Taft must be anxious to have such a great reform to the credit of his administration. If his postmaster general is allowed to advocate it so unreverently.—Parkersburg Dispatch-News.

UNCLE WALT

Poet Philosopher

Words fall me when I try to tell how much I owe to Dr. Hutch. Because of him I'm sound and well, I've thrown away my staff and crutch. This humble tribute must suffice—it is the best that I can say; I always read his good advice, and then I do the other thing. If he suggests that oatmeal mush will drive away my pain and ache, I go down town and blow my cash for wienerwurst and hamburg steak. "Iced tea," he wrote, "will make you frail, it's full of poisons rank and vile." So now I drink it by the pail, and I can whip a crocodile. "Three baths a day," the doctor cried, "will make you feel like him of Gath." He printed that last Whitsun tide, since which I haven't had a bath. I cherished everything he writes, and save it up for useful ends: I paste it in a book at nights, to pass around among my friends. The doctor's wisdom is condensed, and it will save those ailing friends, if they'll do all he warns against, and sidestep all he recommends.

KING OF KOKOMO A HIT.

The quality of the production of "The King of Kokomo," by Billy Allen and his company at the Grand, was attested by the storm of applause by a capacity audience at the Grand last evening, which puts the stamp of approval upon it with a vengeance, and it is a safe prediction that the S. R. O. sign will be displayed several times before this exceptionally clever company leaves our city.

The inaugural of Mr. Allen at the head of his own company also marked the opening of the theater for the winter season and Manager DeShon's face was wreathed in smiles, as he is a great believer in a good beginning, and truly this was a good beginning in every particular.

Mr. Allen is a stranger to the present day generation of Fairmont, although he has been here several years before. Starting with practically the same company out of St. Louis his show has been a scream and, appealing to the south because the people there made him a star, he naturally "stuck." That is why he is little known up this way. He is touring this section of the country for ten weeks. His show never closes. Billy is acquitted all right now, he needs no further introduction. Firstly, he is a real comedian and makes people

An Example of How This Store Does Things

The fact that we are the only exhibitors in our line and the first to make a display of this kind at "The Fair," are well worthy of note.

We are not only first in the exhibit—but are easily first in many other particulars.

More people are learning this fact every day.

This is, truly, Fairmont's Favorite Garment Store.

laugh, his "stage business" is not overdone, he does just enough. Every member of the company is kept in motion. There are no idle waltzes, no drags, and best of all, his performers love to work, and Billy has taught them how. There are plenty of good voices, the costumes are bright and incidentally Billy is not the whole show. He believes in surrounding himself with high-class people, and that he has them shows that he knows who are good and who are not. This is the initial bow of a classy organization in the musical comedy field to appear here at popular prices, and the appreciation is being shown.

There are so many pleasing attractions about the show that one hardly knows where to begin. Miss Cora Mitchell is second only to Mr. Allen in point of importance, and she is truly a clever little lady, possesses a sweet voice, is attractive, dances well, and is versatile. Her duet of singing and dancing with Phil Davis and her individual effort, singing "Some of These Days," were her best efforts. The Keister Sisters, one of whom is the wife of Billy Ogle of this city, a nephew of Frank "Spile" Wilson of Riley street, are as clever as have been seen here. They are big hits. Miss Josie Bright, who is the musical act with the show, Mr. Allen's wife, is an attractive widow in the show, and pleases immensely.
