

WHY SEVEN WOMEN DESIRE ONE HUSBAND

A Symbolical Bible Picture of Present-Day Religious Conditions.

Woman a Symbol of the Church—Jewish Marriage Typical of the Union of Christ and His Church—The True Church a Betrothed Virgin—The Marriage of the Lamb—Who Are the Seven Women?—Who is the One Man?—Why He Turns From Them.

Feb. 21—Pastor Russell's text today was, "Seven women shall take hold of one Man in that Day, saying, We will eat our own bread and wear our own apparel; only let us be called by Thy name, to take away our reproach."—Isaiah 4:1.

The pastor asserted that throughout the Scriptures a woman is a symbol of the church—a pure woman of a pure church, a corrupt woman of a false church. Our Lord compared the true church in the end of the Gospel Age to a company of virgins, pure and part foolish, and Himself to the bridegroom. St. Paul amplifies the figure, declaring, "I have espoused you [the consecrated church] as a chaste virgin unto one husband, which is Christ." (2 Corinthians 11:2). Here, as well as in our Lord's parable of the virgins, the Jewish marriage is set forth as typical of the union between Christ and the church—a very different figure from our marriage custom.

In olden time, when a betrothal took place, legal and binding documents were signed by or for the contracting parties; but no actual marriage occurred for about a year. While waiting for the bridegroom to take her to his own house, the espoused was expected to be as faithful to her espousal as is now expected of any true wife. We see the harmony of this custom and our Lord's dealings with His church.

No one is espoused to the Lord who has not entered into a definite contract with Him. The Lord's part of this contract is the assurance of the Scriptures that if faithful the church shall be His joint-heir in His Millennial Kingdom. The church's part is a covenant of consecration, loyalty, faithfulness, even unto death. The interim between our personal acceptance of our Lord's gracious promises by a full consecration of our all to Him and His service until we actually die corresponds to the betrothal period of the Jewish maiden. But the more exact fulfillment of the figure is found in the history of the church as a whole. The Lord's virgin church was espoused to Him at Pentecost, and has since been waiting the coming of the bridegroom and the resurrection change to glory, honor and immortality the marriage, the union.

"Seven Women in That Day."

The pastor then proceeded to explain the meaning of his text. The number seven is well recognized throughout the Scriptures as a symbol of completeness; and so it may here signify all the churches of this world, excluding the true church, which is not of this world, and which does not follow its course.

We have come to the time when all the various sects and denominations feel the reproach of their situation, brought about by the confusion of doctrines amongst the different branches of Christianity. The heathen are inquiring how it comes that there are so many kinds of Christians, and that they all get their various theories out of the same book. This is a reproach that is keenly felt by the leading minds of all denominations.

The one Man of the text very properly represents our Lord, the Heavenly Bridegroom. The text signifies that all the nominal churches have come to the place where they desire to be called merely the churches of Christ, and want nothing more to do with Him. They desire to hold their sectarian names, but they wish also to be called Christians—their chief asset. For the doctrines of Christ they care nothing; and for any thought of redemption and covering of sins through Him they care nothing; it is merely His name that they desire.

Not So With the True Church.

The more these women desire to eat their own bread and to wear apparel of their own furnishing, the more will the true ones of the Lord's people amongst them find that they have not their lot nor part there. The true church does not wish to eat her own bread; she desires the Bread of Heaven. She does not prefer her own theories, her own plans of salvation, but that which God has provided things new and old from the Storehouse of Divine Truth. Neither does she desire to wear her own apparel; for she has come to understand that all her righteousness is as filthy rags.

More and more is the true church learning to appreciate the robe given her by the Heavenly Bridegroom, the wedding garment. More and more does she trust in the merit of her Redeemer, the covering of whose justification was symbolized by the skins of the sacrifice given to Adam and Eve as the covering of their nakedness.

THE DARDANELLES

I've always longed to view the spot
Where bold Leander
Breasted the wave to Hero's grot,
Defying slander.

Yes, ever since I was a boy
My fancy's beckoned
Across the storied plain of Troy
That Homer reckoned.

And, oh, to see where Xerxes led
His legions fabled;
Where Alexander fought and bled,
Killed and disabled.

Then next my bark in fancy piles
(At dawning tide)
To where enshrined in gold there lies
The pearl of cities!

But from the recent news we've had
It must be hot there,
And I confess I'm rather glad
That I am not there.

MILITARY TRAINING TO BE FEATURE AT PRINCETON

Voluntary Course Under Army Officers
Will Be Instituted.

Princeton will offer a voluntary course in military training after Easter, according to an announcement made by the university faculty. This is the result of an investigation which has covered several months, and it has the vigorous endorsement of President Hibben. The course will consist of a one hour lecture every week, a series of tactical excursions for about two hours every fortnight and regular practice in rifle shooting over indoor and outdoor ranges.

The work will be under the direction of United States army officers, who will be detailed by the war department.

Dr. J. E. Raycroft, chairman of the special faculty committee which had the matter in charge, said that if two or three hundred undergraduates attended the lectures and only twenty-five or fifty took part in the field work and rifle practice the course would be considered successful. The committee's report reads:

Your committee has made a very careful study of the various systems of military training that are in use in the colleges and universities in the United States. None of these systems seems adapted to the conditions which exist in Princeton. The following plan has been worked out in conference with representatives of the United States war department. It has a real educational value and is worth while from the point of view of military instruction. The plan includes:

1. A course of open lectures on the following and allied topics:
  1. A critical study of the military history of the United States, with special reference to the war of 1812, Mexican war, civil war and Spanish war.
  2. Consideration of ways and means that will prevent similar unnecessary sacrifice of lives and money in any emergency that may arise in the future.
  3. Our policy on the Pacific ocean.
  4. The relation of regular forces to military reserves and volunteers.
  5. Types of ordnance.
  6. Function of supply department.
  7. The use of arms.
  8. Military map making and reading.
  9. Military hygiene.

These lectures will be given by officers detailed by the war department one hour a week.

- B. Tactical excursions for the study of:
  1. Offensive and defensive position in a given location.
  2. Trenches and trench building.
  3. Bridge work, pontoons, etc.
  4. Road building.

Two hours or so one afternoon every week or two weeks. Squads to be under charge of officers representing each arm of the regular service.

C. Practice in rifle shooting on both indoor and outdoor ranges.

Your committee recommends the adoption of a resolution giving approval to the organization of voluntary work in military training in Princeton university along the line indicated in this report.

Other members of the committee were Professors George B. McClellan, ex-mayor of New York; Philip M. Brown, A. A. Bowman, Frank J. Mather and Colonel William Libbey.

HEARS WITH HIS SKIN.

Deaf Mute One of the Best Chauffeurs in Cincinnati.

Horace Williamson, state examiner of chauffeurs, in granting a license to George Thole, twenty-three, a deaf and dumb auto driver, declared:

"I consider Thole one of the best chauffeurs in Cincinnati because of the marvelous quality of his skin, which enables him to detect sounds that a regular ear will miss."

"Thole has proved that he can get along without ears. I had him run on street car tracks, and more quickly than my ears could hear Thole's sensitive physical organism detected the approach of a car from behind."

"We tried him on a car with an engine that missed once in awhile, and he knew there was trouble every time. He knows the difference between a vibration from an auto horn and that of a street car."

CALLED KAISER COMRADE.

Bold Infantryman Also Asked Him For Cigarettes and Got Them.

The London Daily Mail quotes the Hamburger Nachrichten as saying that the kaiser was on the western front he dropped his handkerchief and an infantryman picked it up. The kaiser gave him some cigarettes and the man said, "Thank you, your majesty." Thereupon the kaiser said: "Oh, you need not call me your majesty. Here you can simply address me as comrade."

Another infantryman in the neighborhood heard this and promptly called, "Comrade Wilhelm, suppose you give me some too?" The kaiser laughed and handed over the rest of his cigarettes.

ing, and at last night closed and the cordon grew tighter to prevent escape. The Hollmans, like rats in a trap, grimly held on, realizing that it was to be a siege. On the following morning a detachment of "F" company arrived, dragging two gatling guns. The Hollmans saw them detaining, from their lookout in the courthouse cupola, and, realizing that the end had come, resolved upon a desperate sortie. Simultaneously every door and lower window of the courthouse burst open to discharge a frenzied rush of men, firing as they came. They meant to fight their way out and leave as many hostile dead as possible in their wake. Their one chance now was to scatter before the machine guns came into action. They came like a flood of human lava and their guns were never silent, as they bore down on the barricades, where the single outnumbered company seemed insufficient to hold them. But the new militiamen, looking for reassurance not so much to Callomb as to the granite-like face of Samson South, rallied and rose with a yell to meet them on bayonet and smoking muzzle. The rush wavered, fell back, desperately rallied, then broke in scattered remnants for the shelter of the building.

Old Jake Hollman fell near the door, and his grandson, rushing out, picked up his fallen rifle and sent farewell defiance from it as he, too, threw up both arms and dropped.

Then a white flag waved at a window and, as the newly arrived troops halted in the street, the noise died suddenly to quiet. Samson went out to meet a man who opened the door and said shortly:

"We lay down."

Judge Hollman, who had not participated, turned from the slit in his shuttered window, through which he had since the beginning been watching the conflict.

"That ends it!" he said, with a despairing shrug of his shoulders. He picked up a magazine pistol which lay on his table and, carefully counting down his chest to the fifth rib, placed the muzzle against his breast.

Hard to Kill Cities.

The teaching of history is that a city is hard to kill. For instance, London has been decimated five times by plagues, in addition to visitations of typhus, cholera and other epidemics. She has been burned over or less severely several times. Paris has gone through eight sieges, ten famines, two plagues and one fire which devastated it. Rome has been swept by pestilence no fewer than ten times. She has been twice burned and six times driven to submission by starvation. Constantinople has been burned out nine times and has suffered from four plagues and five sieges.—London Spectator.

She Was No Child.

This college professor, like many other men of erudition, was fond of Lewis Carroll. While visiting his sister he asked his niece, a miss of fifteen, to get "Through the Looking Glass" for him from the public library. She evidently did not like the task, and he asked her the reason. With some hesitation she replied: "Oh, I'll get it if you really want it. But I don't like to have the librarian think that I read those children's books."—New York Tribune.

Swiss Flags.

The Swiss flag is red, and it bears a Greek cross in its center. The Swissers declared their independence in 1307, and at the battle of Morgarten, 1315, where the Austrians were defeated, they carried a plain red flag without any device. During the seventeenth century a white cross was added, though it is said that the cross appeared on some Swiss flags as early as 1329. The different cantons of Switzerland have different coats of arms and different flags.
